U. S. Vessels Regain Freedom Of Seas and May Carry Guns

Rayburn Signs Act Cancelling Neutrality, but Wallace Must Bide His Time

Vote Is 212-194

New York Mariners Say U. S. Has Armed Merchant Ships

Washington, Nov. 14 (AP)—American merchantmen regained complete freedom of the seas today by act of Congress, and with it the right to mount guns and shoot if attacked.

The House finished the legislative job in a suspense-packed, historic session yesterday by scrapping the neutrality act amendments which since 1939 have prohibited American shipping from entering the combat zones or beleaguered harbors.

The vote was 212 to 194—not a tremendous majority but a very sweet victory to administration leaders who had been haunted by visions of a photo finish where two or three votes could mean defeat.

The final roll call climaxed the hardest battle yet waged to uphold President Roosevelt's hand in a matter affecting foreign policy. And it came after the tense house heard a dramatic, last-minute appeal from the President.

By its vote the House joined the Senate in broadening the original House ship-armament bill to end all neutrality act restrictions on the movement of vessels flying the Stars and Stripes.

Just as soon as the legislation was approved, Speaker Rayburn quickly affixed his signature, and the strokes of his pen began the official scratching of the neutrality act bans from the statute books.

Signing Is Delayed

There remained the formality of adding the signature of Vice President Wallace before the measure could go to the White House for the final name: Franklin D. Roosevelt. However, an objection by Senator McNary (R., Ore.), the minority leader, made it necessary for Wallace to wait until the Senate reconvenes Monday before signing.

Nevertheless, there was abundant evidence that the technicality of the brief, three-day delay would not prevent the administration from putting the legislation into speedy effect.

On the contrary, reports were current that the preliminary work for the arming of cargo vessels may already be under way. The navy department said merely that plans were ready to proceed at once.

(Informed marine circles in New York said the United States already had armed some of its merchant ships, manned them with naval gun crews and had them ready for instant action.

(They said this was done in anticipation that no difficulty was expected in revising neutrality act regulations. Some ships have been operating under the Panamanian flag with U. S. Navy gun crews aboard. Use of the Panama flag was expected to be discontinued.

(In addition, to arming ships against submarine and plane attack some of America's fastest cargo-passenger liners have been equipped as armed merchant cruisers, these sources said. All recently-constructed American ships have been equipped with devices for conversion into naval craft.

(Shipping firms operating passenger vessels to neutral nations, such as the American Export Line's Lisbon run, expressed hope that their ships would not be armed because, they said, "guns invite attacks." German bombers have been circling export ships near Lisbon for the last few months.)

Secretary Knox declared that the vote meant that both "ships and the men will be available to deliver defense aid and materials" in such quantity and at such places as to aid materially those who oppose "Hitler and his attempted domination of the world."

West Coast Has Most Violent Earthquake Since That of '33

Crack Is Opened in Apartment House in Long Beach and Damage Is Widespread; Theatre Wall Falls

Los Angeles, Nov. 14 (AP)—The third earthquake in five months, and the most violent since a 1933 temblor killed 130 persons, rocked the Los Angeles area at 12:42 a.m. (3:42 a.m. E.S.T.) today.

The quake opened a thin crack in a 12-story apartment building in Long Beach, blew out a transformer at the Los Angeles shipyards, with a resultant spectacular display of blue flames, and darkened suburban areas 30 seconds to five minutes.

At Wilmington, in the harbor area, two General Petroleum Co. fuel tanks, containing a large amount of oil, split open. There was no fire and firemen quickly established a guard at the scene.

The wall of a theatre in Torrance crashed long after the evening's patrons had gone home.

The Gardena fire department reported bricks and plate glass windows from several buildings crashed into Vermont avenue and there were scattered reports of a few other broken window panes.

Armed Vessels Face Greatly Altered Warfare From 1918

Dive-Bombers Increase Hazards Offered by U-Boats; Raiders More Numerous

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

Washington, Nov. 14 (AP)—Armed American ships of 1941 face a different type of naval warfare from that which produced scores of heroic and hard-fought engagements in 1918.

As many naval authorities view the situation now, merchantmen must be prepared to defend themselves not only against U-boats operating with vastly improved devices for attacking but also against swift Nazi bombers that harass the sea lanes for hundreds of miles off the British coast.

And the raiders are much more numerous today. Prime Minister Churchill declared earlier this week that "there never have been more U-boats or long-range aircraft than are working now."

During the first World War cargo ships participated in some of the most bitterly-contested sea actions recorded and in many cases the submarine either was balked or came off second best.

The fierceness of one of these encounters made a stirring page in the log of the S.S. J. L. Luckenbach. The steamer was attacked by a U-boat shortly after sunrise on October 19, 1917 and the ensuing battle raged four hours. The submarine fired 225 rounds and said he would secure counsel. Bail was continued and Judge Conway said he would allow 20 days to make further motions in the case.

Three defendants charged with escape from Walkill Prison were haled into court and all entered pleas of guilty to the charge and had imposition of sentence postponed. Walter Willey of Rochester appeared by Chris J. Flanagan and a plea of guilty was entered. Sentence will be imposed on December 3 at the request of Mr. Flanagan who told the court he would be absent from the city during the deer hunting season. John D. Campbell of Brooklyn and Paul Charles of Gouverneur, both appeared by David Schoenhardt and entered pleas of guilty. They will be sentenced on Monday morning at 10 o'clock.

Irving Law of Mt. Marion, appeared by John W. DeWitt and pleaded guilty to unlawful entry, the second count in a bill which also charged burglary, third degree, at the Sandy property at Gleniere on July 3, last. He will be sentenced Monday at 10 o'clock. Robert S. Winnie, who now resides at Union City, N. J., and was jointly indicted with Law, also pleaded guilty to the same charge and will be sentenced on December 3. Chris J. Flanagan appeared for Winnie. Law was not arraigned until this morning since he was in the hospital at the time Winnie was arraigned some time ago.

Jason Sahler, indicted on a sex charge, pleaded guilty to violation of Section 43 of the penal law and will be sentenced on December 3 at 10 o'clock. Chris J. Flanagan appeared for Sahler who sat at Ulster Park.

Doorbell Ringing—Easy Style

There's nothing mysterious about the way advertising works.

It's like the salesmen who go from house to house looking for customers.

Advertising does the same job on a larger scale.

It's quicker — reaches more people — at a lower cost per call.

In other words, it's a time saver, which means it's a money saver as well—Advertising Federation of America.

Nazis Are Engaged In Sort of Neurotic War Dance in East

Once Hitler Stops Driving Against Russia, He Is Done, for Anglo Power Gains

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

(Freeman Special News Service) Hitler's constant, nervous thrusts at the long Russian battlefield present an interesting phenomenon—a sort of military St. Vitus's dance over which he has no control.

The führer is in that peculiar position—which is not without its advantages—of being unable to stop attacking even if he wished. On that score the probabilities are that the necessity fits his desires.

The thing is well summed up by General H. S. Sewell, the military expert, who remarks that "with the initiative still in his hands, Germany must strike in some direction: England is growing stronger and Russia is unbeaten, and there is no time even to pause." In other words, the great war machine which Hitler built is a perpetual motion affair, and the minute it stops churning out attacks it will be done.

Leningrad—Moscow—the Crimea—all along the Red line the Nazis have been prodding and testing to see if they could find a weak spot worth developing, despite the early winter weather which already is making military operations difficult and turning the life of the soldier into one of bitter hardship. Thus far, apart from the Crimea the Nazis seem to have set a bunch of tarts into action.

A Russian report from Leningrad tells of the Bolsheviks breaking through the enemy siege lines. Northwest and southeast of Moscow the Reds answered the German thrusts with fierce counter-attacks which the Soviet capital reports have flung the invaders back with heavy losses.

Crimea Is Crucial Spot

Down in the Crimea, however, the Germans claim success is meeting their offensive. This really represents the crucial engagement of the moment, for the German objective is the Caucasus—that oil-laden strip of land which separates the Black and the Caspian seas. And there is more than oil involved, for the Caucasus is one of the gateways into the middle east, vast military base of surpassing importance for operations against Egypt and India.

Hitler's immediate concern is the oil, and the prize for which he is reaching is titanic. The National Geographic Society of Washington points out that between 80 per cent and 90 per cent of Russia's oil comes from the Caucasus—and the Soviet Union ranks next to the United States in world production.

Nazi commentators say that the Caucasus is important not so much for the new oil it would bring to Germany as for the effect the loss of this oil would have on Russia. Well, that's a natural way for an official commentator to put the position, but let none believe that this oil doesn't represent one of the greatest conquests which Hitler could achieve.

This column has pointed out before that great oil experts say Germany's lack of lubricating oil is her greatest danger at this time. Don't forget that all machinery—both for war and industry—depends on oil.

Urge His Troops On

So it is with an eager heart that the führer urges his troops on to the difficult offensive in the south. If he can capture the vast oil supplies of the Caucasus, they will float him far.

The Nazis are battering at the fortifications of the great naval port of Sevastopol and also of Kerch which lies on the four-mile-wide strait of the same name between the Crimea and the Caucasus. Hitler hopes that if he can take Kerch he can fling an army across the narrow waterway into the Caucasus, to cooperate with other German forces which are besieging Rostov on the Don, France.

Another rousing thriller was the

Another Tradition Shattered

New York—It's getting so none of the traditions of the old west is sacred.

William S. Hart, the "Two-gun Bill" of silent movie fame, doffed his 10-gallon fedora for a cap shortly after his arrival here to have his eyes examined, explaining that if he stuck to the cowboy headgear:

"Some people would think I did it just to be noticed and I wouldn't have that for the world."

Rude Awakening

Spartanburg, S. C.—Rescuers dug furiously into the wreckage of an overturned army truck which had been loaded with 2,000 cans of anti-freeze.

For at the bottom of the pile presumably lay Pvt. A. W. McGloren, who had been wrapped in blankets, asleep atop the truck. After they had dug 30 minutes, McGloren crawled out.

He stood up, felt his body to see if it were all there, then remarked, "this is a fine way to wake a guy up."

Orders Is Orders

Inglewood, Calif.—Draft Board 261, which admonished John Richard Vogt to keep it posted of his whereabouts, has received this communication:

"I have changed my address to eighth floor, Canada Building, Windsor, Ont."

Vogt is now a member of the royal Canadian air force.

No Hum!

Kansas City—Judge Emory H. Wright let it go with a mild reprimand when he caught a juror reading a book during trial of a $4,550 lawsuit.

But when Roy Camer, Jr., dozed off to sleep it was too much. The judge excused him and both sides agreed to proceed with 11 jurors.

New York Briefs

New York, Nov. 14 (P)—Participation by Edwin F. Chinlund, president of the Postal Telegraph-Cable Company, in a debate before a C.L.O. union last night was described by union officials as the first time the head of large corporation had been invited to such a discussion at a regular union meeting.

Chinlund argued the affirmative of the question "should the Postal Telegraph Company be merged as quickly with the Western Union Company as congressional action will permit?" His opponent was Joseph P. Selly, president of the American Communications Association, union of which the Postal employees are members, and sponsor of the debate.

New York, Nov. 14 (P)—For the first time in the history of the New York City Board of Education the 1,000,000 children in 1,000 public elementary and high schools had simultaneous fire drills yesterday as part of an emergency air raid program.

James Marshall, school board president, described the school system's first mass drill as "very well handled and very well performed."

New York, Nov. 14 (P)—An "imperative necessity" for "leaders in all walks of life—bankers, industrialists, business and professional men" to make felt their influence in "critical times like these" is noted by Chancellor O. C. Carmichael of Vanderbilt University.

The educator told the 173rd annual banquet of the Chamber of Commerce of the state of New York last night that such men had been prone to "stay out of politics, to avoid controversial issues."

Chamber President Percy H. Johnston outlined the organization's program for the present emergency, which proposes to work for national unity in order that the defense effort may reach its maximum efficiency.

sonal thanks to Rayburn and Democratic Floor Leader McCormack of Massachusetts for their victory in the strenuous battle. A secretary said the Chief Executive was "naturally pleased with the result."

Secretary Hull, whose services had been enlisted to win over fence-straddling members when it looked as though the legislation might be defeated, hailed the House's action as "an exceedingly wise and timely decision."

But a much different appraisal came from Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.), one of the administration's bitterest critics on foreign policy.

Mr. Roosevelt "can't take us into war with that kind of a vote behind him," Wheeler asserted.

"If he can't get more than a majority of 18 votes after exerting all the pressure he did, he had better go slowly because many of those who voted with him are not in favor of getting this country into war."

The hands of the two big clocks in the House chamber stood at 4 o'clock when the clerk began to call the roll of the members—almost all of them present. Galleries were packed and long lines crowded up to the chamber's doors.

Rayburn had just read a personal letter from Mr. Roosevelt.

In so many words the Chief Executive told the House that defeat of the legislation would encourage aggressive acts by Germany and her allies; that it would interfere with the defense of the United States.

He also had something to say, obviously for the benefit of those Democrats who had openly complained in debate that defense strikes were continuing and that the country was not properly prepared.

Speaks of Today's Conference

Mr. Roosevelt declared that defeat would make strikes and work stoppages "less serious in the mind of the public." Then he mentioned the conference today on the soft coal captive mine dispute. He said he hoped it would be successful, but if it was not, "this coal must be mined" to keep steel plants going.

"The government," he promised to his final sentence, "proposes to see this thing through."

Rayburn followed the President's letter by an appeal of his own for the support of those Democrats, and he brought the members to their feet shouting and applauding when he said:

"If it is of interest to anyone to know my position on both capital and labor in this titanic, this fateful struggle for democracy and decency, it is that I am ready to follow or to lead in any movement by legislation or sanely otherwise, that will keep defense production at the board's decision in the mine case."

The U.M.W. policy committee resolution commanded and approved the action of Murray, Kennedy and other C.I.O. officials in resigning from the mediation board in protest against the board's decision in the mine case.

The resolution was adopted after Lewis, Murray and Kennedy had reviewed recent developments in the dispute.

As the roll-call proceeded, the administration forces slowly pulled away to a lead which 25 minutes later became 18 votes—a comparatively small margin of the 435 members but substantial to those administration leaders who at 10 a. m. yesterday privately admitted fear of defeat by 65 votes.

The record showed 189 Democrats, 22 Republicans and one American-Labor party member voting for the resolution; 53 Democrats, 137 Republicans, one Farm-Laborite, and three Progressives voted against it.

Londoners Cheer

In London Ambassador Winant brought a burst of loud cheers when he announced the House's action to a dinner he was attending. The British public generally were gratified at the news, but there was disappointment in some quarters by the small margin of victory.

Canada's Prime Minister Mackenzie King called neutrality revision "the handwriting on the wall spelling the doom of the Axis powers." Commenting at Ottawa, he said, "it means immediate increased, effective assistance to countries resisting aggression."

To the average German the small margin was an indication of the lack of a popular front. The Berlin press and radio stressed the opposition arguments.

At the Tokyo end of the Axis, one newspaper featured a dispatch which said that the President's foreign policy had been dealt a great blow by the defection of some Democrats who voted against the bill.

Domestically, Wendell L. Willkie blamed the close vote in part on "the administration's negligence and muddling in the solution of our industrial labor relations problem." He called for an immediate correction of those errors "which caused so many members of Congress to vote to endanger our foreign policy upon which depends the hope of survival of freedom."

Several Criminal Matters Are Heard By County Judge

Two executives of the Keep America Out of War Congress termed the vote "a hollow victory for the war party, shabbily achieved by the President's promise to outlaw strikes," and a warning "not further to provoke war with Germany, Italy or Japan."

The executive committee of America First's New York chapter asserted that revision "does not greatly change the situation," but Ulric Bell, executive committee chairman of Fight for Freedom contended: "He (Hitler) will have to fight back now. This will mean war, and a declaration of war should and will follow."

Norman Thomas, Socialist leader, thought the "close vote put us near to total war," and he added that "it took all of Mr. Roosevelt's bower and prestige, and probably the public does not know to achieve it."

But a much different appraisal came from Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.), one of the administration's bitterest critics on foreign policy.

Mr. Roosevelt "can't take us into war with that kind of a vote behind him," Wheeler asserted.

"If he can't get more than a majority of 18 votes after exerting all the pressure he did, he had better go slowly because many of those who voted with him are not in favor of getting this country into war."

The hands of the two big clocks in the House chamber stood at 4 o'clock when the clerk began to call the roll of the members—almost all of them present. Galleries were packed and long lines crowded up to the chamber's doors.

Rayburn had just read a personal letter from Mr. Roosevelt.

In so many words the Chief Executive told the House that defeat of the legislation would encourage aggressive acts by Germany and her allies; that it would interfere with the defense of the United States.

He also had something to say, obviously for the benefit of those Democrats who had openly complained in debate that defense strikes were continuing and that the country was not properly prepared.

Speaks of Today's Conference

Mr. Roosevelt declared that defeat would make strikes and work stoppages "less serious in the mind of the public." Then he mentioned the conference today on the soft coal captive mine dispute. He said he hoped it would be successful, but if it was not, "this coal must be mined" to keep steel plants going.

"The government," he promised to his final sentence, "proposes to see this thing through."

Rayburn followed the President's letter by an appeal of his own for the support of those Democrats, and he brought the members to their feet shouting and applauding when he said:

"If it is of interest to anyone to know my position on both capital and labor in this titanic, this fateful struggle for democracy and decency, it is that I am ready to follow or to lead in any movement by legislation or sanely otherwise, that will keep defense production at the board's decision in the mine case."

The U.M.W. policy committee resolution commanded and approved the action of Murray, Kennedy and other C.I.O. officials in resigning from the mediation board in protest against the board's decision in the mine case.

The resolution was adopted after Lewis, Murray and Kennedy had reviewed recent developments in the dispute.

The policy committee agreed to return to U.M.W. headquarters for a meeting tentatively set for 2:30 p.m., at which time Lewis said he would report the outcome of the White House conference.

This dispute was brought to a climax by the mediation board's nine to two rejection of the miners' demand for a union shop.

Mr. Roosevelt told Congress yesterday in a letter that the coal captive mines produce for the steel mills "must be mined."

Henry Cool Is Hurt

Henry Cool of 60 Prince street suffered an injured left leg when the door of his automobile was struck by a passing truck on East Strand about 11 o'clock this morning. From his information obtained by Officer Robert Murphy, Mr. Cool had parked his car at the curb in front of the Kaplan Furniture Company store, and as he started to get out of the door on the driver's side of the auto, the truck struck the door, jamming Cool's leg between the edge of the door and the jamb.

Londoners Cheer

In London Ambassador Winant brought a burst of loud cheers when he announced the House's action to a dinner he was attending. The British public generally were gratified at the news, but there was disappointment in some quarters by the small margin of victory.

Canada's Prime Minister Mackenzie King called neutrality revision "the handwriting on the wall spelling the doom of the Axis powers."

Commenting at Ottawa, he said, "it means immediate increased, effective assistance to countries resisting aggression."

To the average German the small margin was an indication of the lack of a popular front. The Berlin press and radio stressed the opposition arguments.

At the Tokyo end of the Axis, one newspaper featured a dispatch which said that the President's foreign policy had been dealt a great blow by the defection of some Democrats who voted against the bill.

Domestically, Wendell L. Willkie blamed the close vote in part on "the administration's negligence and muddling in the solution of our industrial labor relations problem."

He called for an immediate correction of those errors "which caused so many members of Congress to vote to endanger our foreign policy upon which depends the hope of survival of freedom."

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, NOVEMBER 14, 1941.

KINGSTON FOLKS STILL SAVE

It is interesting to note that the membership in the Christmas Clubs in Kingston this year has increased over 1940, and that approximately $57,000 more has been deposited by the club members. This year it is expected that about $432,000 as compared with the amount of $375,000 for 1940, will be distributed among the club members this month.

This vast sum, which has been saved mostly by the depositing of small weekly sums during the year, will be used in Kingston for various purposes. It is safe to say, however, that the greater part of that sum will be spent in Kingston's stores.

The distribution of Christmas Club checks each November proves a stimulant to local business, and Kingston merchants for years have realized that fact and have made certain to have on hand stocks of merchandise of varied quantity and of good quality to meet all demands.

That Kingston has been one of the big trade centers of the Mid-Hudson area is shown by the figures compiled in the survey of business made by the U. S. Department of Commerce. The 1940 survey disclosed that in the wholesale business Kingston holds first place over Poughkeepsie and Newburgh.

In retail trade Kingston is shown to be above-average, holding well over its quota of retail business. The survey shows that last year the retail sales in Kingston's 593 stores totaled $16,323,000; a rise from the $12,540,000 recorded in a previous survey made in 1935.

This amount represents sales of $572 per capita in Kingston as compared with the $344 per person for the rest of the nation.

These government figures show conclusively that Kingston people buy in Kingston, and that the city also draws on a wide territory outside the city for a profitable and increasing business.

The reason for this steady increase in the amount of retail sales since 1935 is easily explained. In brief it means that Kingston merchants offer merchandise of superior quality at the lowest price possible at which a fair profit may be made.

Without profit no business can exist, but Kingston merchants have not attempted to make an exorbitant profit on the merchandise they sell.

The figures shown by the government survey of 1940 are reflected in the increase in savings of the members of the Christmas Clubs of Kingston.

With the early reception of Christmas Club checks, local residents are in a position to shop early and mail early. Postoffice officials urge early mailing of Christmas packages and especially the gifts to be sent for the United States military and naval outposts. Because of irregularity of transportation to some points the postal officials say it is desirable to get packages in the mail as early as possible.

AGGRESSIVE MOOSE

There have been many reports in recent years of the increase in wild life in America. The most startling one current comes from Maine where farmers on their own land, motorists on the highways and even people on village streets have been chevied about by wild moose. This noble but ferocious animal has been protected in Maine for ten years or more. Citizens now say the wrong animal is being protected, that they have become the hunted, and something must be done about it.

The moose no longer leap for the tall timber when they find themselves in populous area. Instead they charge the hapless people who cross their path. One story tells of a moose that stopped a two-car party driving along a road at midnight. The people expected just to sit still until the moose decided to go away, but the antlered monarch of the waste didn't like the plan. Furiously he charged one car, breaking windows, fenders and door. The occupants jumped out and spent the next 15 minutes frantically dodging while the moose pursued. When he tired of chasing them he concentrated on wrecking the cars. It was half an hour before he wore of this sport and went off into the woods. Somebody should inform those fellows how much more fun they'd have if they patterned their behavior after that of "Honk, the Moose," the four-footed hero of Phil Stong's delightful book.

PEACE IN PACIFIC

Saburo Kurusu, Japanese trouble shooter, comes buzzing to Washington in a blare of publicity to fix up Japanese-American relations and avoid war. That is fine—if he and his government are sincere about it and willing to avoid extravagant demands and listen to reason.

The Japanese say they want peace in the Pacific. That is what we want. We want peace in China, in the Philippines, in the Dutch Indies, in Thailand, in the islands of the sea.

We want peace because it is the decent and profitable way of life. Without the burden of wars and warships and armies, all of us whose front doors open on the Pacific Ocean could work and trade profitably and live comfortably, enjoying each other's society and sharing each other's culture. Wars of conquest, even when successful, no longer pay, as Japan herself should know.

Peace and the "Co-Prosperity" that Japanese statesmen talk about cannot be achieved without renunciation of armed conquest. Both morality and mutual interest demand particularly that China shall be free. And Japan herself would profit greatly by recognizing that fact.

PNEUMONIA AND OVERCROWDING

For many years the death rate among pneumonia patients was nearly ten per cent. During the flu epidemic of 1918-19, I was Senior Medical Officer of a Military Base Hospital of 1,000 beds. The fact that we were able to get the death rate of pneumonia below even 9 per cent was considered a tribute to the skill and care of the physicians and nurses in charge of the patients.

Today, due to the use of sulfamamide and its related drugs, the death rate in pneumonia is down to about 3 per cent.

However, the prevention of pneumonia is even more important than reducing the death rate.

That the organisms of pneumonia are often present in individuals without causing symptoms is known. Just what causes the organisms to increase in number and strength to the point of causing pneumonia is causing close study everywhere.

It has been believed for years that fatigue or tiredness is a factor because so many tired husbands and wives have developed pneumonia after waiting on their wives and husbands during an attack of pneumonia. That coming in such close and continuous contact with the patients may be a factor in causing pneumonia is now the opinion of some physicians.

Thus, "overcrowding", living in crowded quarters, would seem to be a factor in causing pneumonia is shown by Dr. Julian E. Benjamin, Dr. James W. Ruegger, and Fanny A. Senior, Cincinnati General Hospital, in the Ohio State Medical Journal.

A survey of 12,549 households in Cincinnati was so selected as to represent a cross section of the community.

The Cincinnati General Hospital treated 343 patient with pneumonia (due to the pneumococcus organism) in 1935-36, 437 in 1936-37, and 503 in 1937-8. The residents of 17 tracts or areas of the city representing 25 per cent of the total population accounted for 65 per cent (821) of these patients. These seventeen areas represented the part of the city where overcrowded conditions are greatest.

That same condition—higher death rate from pneumonia where the population was most crowded—was also found to exist in 19 other large cities.

From the above figures, these research workers believe that pneumonia is really contagious and physicians should report their cases to the health department just as other contagious diseases are reported.

From this naturally follows that in crowded districts where pneumonia is so prevalent, vaccination against pneumonia might be worth trying.

The Common Cold

Pneumonia and bronchopneumonia are two of the most severe complications which sometimes follow the common cold. Send today for Dr. Barton's helpful booklet entitled "The Common Cold" (No. 104). Send ten cents with your request to cover cost of handling to The Bell Library, Post Office Box 75, Station O, New York, N.Y., and mention the Kingston Daily Freeman.

DEFENSE BOND Quiz

Q. What is the Treasury's underlying thought in avoiding a pressure campaign to sell Defense Savings Bonds and Stamps?

A. The belief that the American public is anxious to add to the limit in defense of the Nation, and also wants to save money for future needs, especially since such savings will help to keep down the cost of living.

Q. Should I buy Defense Savings Stamps at retail stores rather than at post offices and banks?

A. Buy stamps wherever it is most convenient. The important thing is to purchase Stamps as often as you can, and exchange the completed Stamp album for a Defense Savings Bond.

Note.—To buy Defense Bonds and Stamps, go to the nearest post office, bank, or savings and loan association; or write to the Treasurer of the United States, Washington, D. C. Also Stamps are now on sale at retail stores.

Margin of House Vote on Neutrality Is No Real Picture of Sentiments in That Body

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Nov. 14.—The margin of 18 votes by which the Congress voted to repeal the so-called neutrality statute provisions that prevented American ships from traversing the high seas at will was in reality no true picture of the sentiment of the House on the merits of the issues themselves.

Many members, knowing that the bill would pass, used the occasion to emphasize their demand for legislation to curb strikes on defense production. Others gave vent to grievances of one kind or another against the administration or the President.

The basic fact is that if the United States is clearly demonstrated to be in need of a vote of Congress as a measure of safety or as a move in support of the anti-Axis sentiment of the country, the tally would be almost as overwhelming as it has been on the lend-and-lease issue.

What is more important than the domestic phases of the controversy is that the United States Congress has at last placed the position of America on the basic of international law that applied before the "cash-and-carry" policy was adopted.

The isolationist sentiment which for a decade or more has been dominant managed to get the neutrality restrictions through Congress in the first instance. This was the sentiment which persuaded many people that wars start with munitions makers and that only sordid financial gain induced the United States to enter the last war. This kind of argument sponsored by Senator Nye and others was responsible for the neutrality legislation restrictions which incidentally were supported in the first instance by many members in Congress who came to share the view that American ships were kept off the oceans there would be no danger of war.

What has happened since is that even in peaceful waters far from the battle zones, American ships like the steamer Lehigh, empty of cargo and bound homeward from an outlaw state no longer remain open to attack from neutrals who fight against the aggressor states.

If undeclared war is anomalous, it is not because the neutrals have desired it so but because it is the only way they can make protective neutrality effective.

The vote in the House for the removal of restrictions on American ships that wish to enter all ports of the world irrespective of blockades was somewhat different from that which merely authorized the arming of merchant ships. Many Democrats bolted but this time the Republicans again lined up as they did on the first measure. The majority of the Republican party have again taken the isolationist position which certainly means they cannot possibly carry the House in 1942.

BABSON ON BUSINESS

"AT CENTURY'S TURN"

By H. L. VAN DEUSEN

WAGES AND PRICES

Babson Discusses Real Cost of Living

Babson Park, Mass., Nov. 14—I know something about "cost-of-living" indices. When I was Assistant to the Secretary of Labor I had a hand in making the government cost-of-living index that is in use. The U. S. Bureau of Labor's present index is complete, but impractical. 198 different goods and services are priced. Rents are priced in 33 cities for a varying number of dwellings where wage earners and clerical workers live, depending upon the size of the city, — from 450 in Manchester, N. H. to 2750 in New York City.

What's in the Index?

The cost-of-living index is made up by combining a separate index for each group of expenditures. The food group is derived from such items as cereals and bakery products; meats, fish, and poultry; eggs and dairy products; fruits and vegetables; fats and oils; sugar and beverages. "Cereals" include white flour, macaroni, corn flakes, and corn meal; whereas "fruits and vegetables" include apples, bananas, oranges, green beans, cabbage, carrots, lettuce, onions, potatoes, spinach, sweet potatoes, as well as the canned and dried varieties.

Other groups cover clothing, rent, fuel, electricity, house furnishings, insurance, and miscellaneous.

There is an index for each of the 33 cities covered. Thus, the index is not meant to represent the cost-of-living on farms. I have adjusted this U. S. index to cover the 15% waste which goes into the garbage pail and elsewhere. I, however, have made no allowance for the billions wasted on crime, harmful drugs, etc. The importance of waste cannot be too highly emphasized in computing a cost-of-living index, particularly in these times.

The President, in his proclamation establishing Civilian Defense Week says,—"We must halt the waste and all unnecessary use of critical materials." I submit my index below:

Food	28.6
Clothing	8.4
Rent	18.0
Fuel, Electricity, & Ice	4.4
House Furnishings	4.2
Miscellaneous	20.7
Insurance	7
Garbage Pail & Other Waste	15.0

buy things which are plentiful, as squash and apples are now. Buy cheaper cuts of meat. Bottom of the round sells in Boston for 32 cents a pound and has as much food value as sirloin at 65 cents. Why buy for "tenderness" when you can get as much nourishment for less money and have a smaller dental bill? There is a 3-5 cent difference between canned "standard" peas and "fancy" peas. The standard pea has more food value and cost less. The fancy pea only looks better and tastes better.

Cost of Shelter

Building costs, including materials and labor, are about 12% above a year ago. Before building a new house today prospective home-owners should perhaps consider the purchase of foreclosed property from banks and insurance companies. Much of this property is available and has been put into good shape. Such property may be financed on a modest down payment and easy monthly installments. Thus the total cost of owning a house today may be even less than in the past if people will take time to shop around.

The rise to date in the over-all cost of living is fully compensated for by the fact that there has been a continual increase in the number of people employed. This monthly increase is now running at the rate of about 450,000 persons. As some one member of a family here-tofore unemployed gets employment, this raises the total family income and compensates for any increase in the cost-of-living.

Combating Living Costs

Some 80% of our workers are engaged in non-defense industries which cannot possibly pay increased wages. Civil service and other government employees are in the same boat. They will feel rising living costs more than any other group. The 5% minority group can readily adjust themselves to meet higher prices. Most of those, however, who are not in the defense industries must change their purchasing habits.

This 80% of our people will surely have to be content with wasting less and spending less on their car. They can do much, however, to combat rising living costs by shifting their purchases from items that have gone up to items that have not gone up. This can be done. We can all also remember the old New England proverb,—"Eat it up — Wear it out — Make it do!"

Manufacturers Are Asked to Inspect Contract Special

Train Representing O.P.M.
Will Visit Poughkeepsie
November 29 for Conferences

Arrangements were completed today for the visit of the Defense Special, a red white and blue train carrying samples of the types of defense equipment needed by the armed services and the United States Maritime Commission, to Poughkeepsie on Saturday, November 29.

The special, sent out by the Contract Distribution Division of O. P. M., the Army, the Navy and the Maritime Commission, will arrive at Poughkeepsie at 9 a. m. and remain through to 5 p. m. During the visit it will be parked at Track No. 5, N. Y. Central R. R. Passenger Station, Poughkeepsie.

Officers and other representatives of the Army, the Navy, the Maritime Commission and the O. P. M. will be aboard. They will give manufacturers definite information as to whether their plants appear suited for defense production and, if so, how to go after defense work. In some instances the train staff will initiate negotiations which, carried through at regular offices of the services in the field, will result in contracts.

R. A. J. Wellington, advance engineer for the train, completed arrangements for the visit in conferences here with civic leaders and others.

Manufacturers may obtain admission to the train by writing in advance to the O. P. M. Contract Distribution Division field office, Attention C. H. Adler, at Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corp., South Road in Poughkeepsie and, if they have not already done so, enclosing information regarding their machine tools and other production facilities.

The volume of work to be carried on in the train will make it impossible to admit the public also but a limited number of city officials, civic leaders and representatives of the press and radio will be invited aboard at 8:50 a. m. on Saturday, November 29, before conference with manufacturers begin. Interview with the manufacturers will begin at 9 a. m. and continue until 5 p. m., with no mid-day interruption. Factory owners will be assigned definite hours for their visits in order to avoid congestion. Since interviews and examination of defense samples will require an hour's time in many instances, the last will be admitted at 4 p. m.

The train will consist of six cars equipped with defense samples and conference tables, and two cars of living quarters. Aboard will be 16 Army officers, nine Navy officers and representatives of the Maritime Commission, and eight representatives of the O. P. M. This staff will be augmented by representatives of the O. P. M. Contract Distribution Division field office at New York.

Services represented on the train by officers and exhibits will include the Army Air Corps, Ordnance Department, Quartermaster Corps, Signal Corps, Corps of Engineers, Chemical Warfare Service, Medical Corps, Marine Corps, various procurement branches of the Navy, and the Maritime Commission.

The Defense Special visiting Poughkeepsie will be one of three touring the country to supply essential information regarding defense production needs in areas where full information and exhibits are not normally available. The train staff will endeavor to determine what types of defense equipment manufacturers are capable of producing and guide those with suitable equipment either to defense contractors who have work to let under sub-contracts or to the proper government procurement offices or O. P. M. Contract Distribution Division field offices.

Chapter 28
Errand Of Mercy

IT couldn't be. All the bright future she had visioned was blotted out and she was a child on horseback, flying over fences, with Riv encouraging her on to new feats of daring. She was a girl home from school and Riv was walking with her in the moonlight and she was lifting her face for his kiss.

No matter how she tried to cling to the fact that she was married, that she loved Johnny—that all this day she had planned and looked forward to showing him that she loved him—everything seemed to be slipping away but the thought of Riv and the horror of knowing that he might die.

They turned in the drive of Colonel Moore's plantation home, Oak Hill. Before them stood the house, lights blazing from every window, cars crowding the drive. A servant opened the door, with a face gray with fear and eyes watery with tears.

"Evenin', Miss Sue Ellen." He was Jennie's son. He had followed Riv and Sue Ellen through the woods; he had been companion, protector, the black boy who was the same age as Riv and who loved him and lied for him.

"Good evening, Sam."

A friend of the Colonel's came to meet them and gravely told Sue Ellen to follow him upstairs.

A long, winding mahogany-railed staircase which seemed endless. The upper hall with its gleaming crystal chandeliers and bright thick red carpet. Closed white doors, but from behind one came the muted murmur of voices and then her name, "Sue Ellen!"

Louder and louder, repeated over and over. For a minute she swayed and would have fallen, but Toby was right at her elbow and guided her forward.

Toby opened the door and for a minute the room and the surroundings lacked reality. Like a scene in a dream which might fog and disappear—like a nightmare from which she would awake.

"Sue Ellen!"

Suddenly every emotion was gone but compassion. She stripped off her raincoat and left it in Toby's hands. She ran forward and knelt down beside that poor broken, tossing figure, "Riv—"

This was the boy she had loved, who lay with his dark hair tumbled on the white pillow, whose head turned restlessly toward her, whose voice broken in a sob.

"Sue Ellen."

"Yes, Riv."

"Do you love me?"

For a second she hesitated.

"Yes, Riv."

She had not lied. She did love the boy who had been her childhood playmate, and even though she lied, wasn't a lie justifiable when Riv was dying?

"At his halting plea, she came close to the bed and took his shaking hand.

"Sue." His voice was pitiful and broken.

Moved by a sudden impulse, she stooped and kissed him. He closed his eyes and for the moment his face was frightening, grey with pallor—expressionless.

Someone behind her came forward and took her arm. "He's unconscious." It was the old doctor whom she had known all her life. Young Doctor Warren stood with him, and behind them she saw the Colonel, his face ravaged and working pitifully. He was crying. It was terrible to see him cry. He was always so hard and impressive—there were others in the hall outside. Toby waited, and coming down the hall with the brilliant light from the crystal chandelier making her even more angular and, tonight, downright ugly, she saw Deedora.

Deedora stopped, dead—still when she saw her. She never spoke but the glaze of contempt was like the flip of a whip across Sue Ellen's face. It told her that Deedora thought she had the right here. Riv was Deedora's husband. A dying man's hysterical cry during delirium was no excuse in Deedora's eyes for forcing her way into Riv's room.

It was Deedora whom she should have called. Innocently, she had done something she must bitterly regret. A compassionate gesture, even though backed by the doctor's assurance that it was necessary to quiet Riv, would never make Deedora understand.

Even Toby caught the significance of that glance. "Let's go," he said quickly. "Maybe I was wrong to bring you, but Doctor Warren thought you might help."

"I was glad to help," said Sue Ellen quietly.

She started down the long winding stairs and then for the second time paused, clinging to the railing unable to take the next step, for at the foot of the stairs, with his grey eyes regarding her gravely, was Johnny Harris...

Postponement

RIV did not die. She did not want Riv to die, but in the days of his slow recovery, Sue Ellen thought bitterly of the impulsive trip to Oak Hill and how it had changed things for her. Ex-

President Tells Press That Decision Will Remove All Marines Now in Three Cities

Washington, Nov. 14 (AP)—President Roosevelt announced today the United States government had decided to withdraw American marines from Shanghai, Tientsin and Peiping, China.

That will take all the American marines out of China, the Chief Executive told a press conference. About 750 of them have been stationed in the three cities. The President would not discuss capital speculation about the withdrawal of these troops being linked with efforts to obtain a better understanding between this country and Japan.

He said he had no definite plans yet to see Japan's special envoy, Saburo Kurusu, who is flying to the United States to discuss the mans are undertaking. The Strait of Kerch is a nasty barrier, and Sevastopol is a great threat, since it is the main Russian naval port in the Black Sea. One German military expert says:

"The fight for Caucasian oil will be chiefly a question of supplies promptly following the troops. The power controlling the Black Sea will have a great advantage over whoever comes up from the Persian Gulf."

That is a fair outline of the position. The loss of Sevastopol by the Russians would be a terrific blow to their domination of the Black Sea.

The British reportedly are maneuvering their forces in the middle east into position to join the Russians in defending the Caucasus.

Far Eastern situation.

Asked whether he thought war could be avoided in the Pacific, Mr. Roosevelt said he certainly hoped so.

Armed Vessels Face Greatly Altered Warfare From 1918

case of the S.S. Moreni. Attacked in the Spanish coast, she was hit 45 times by shellfire and her gasoline tanks exploded, but the gun crew kept firing until the entire vessel was in flames. A Spanish steamer then picked up the survivors and both the Spaniards and the U-boat's crew cheered the gunners as they went aboard the rescue ship.

Better fortune attended the S.S. Mongolia which was attacked in mid-April, 1917, only a short time after the arming of American merchantmen. Ships officers reported that a shell from their guns struck the U-boat's conning tower squarely and the sub disappeared in a cloud of smoke. This was the first "hit" on a German submarine reported by an American ship.

In those days it was the practice of U-boats to surface and attack merchantmen with shellfire whenever possible, using their expensive torpedoes only when they had no other choice. Almost always the attacks occurred in the day-time, on or near the surface, so that the merchantman had a chance to fight back.

In the present war the record to date has given evidence of much different tactics. The U-boats have attacked at night, prowling unseen on the ocean's surface with muffled engines, and aiming not by sight so much as by sound. Their detectors for picking up the beat of ships' propellers are said to have been greatly improved in the last 22 years.

Against these losses Daniels compiled by Josephus Daniels, World War secretary of the navy, 29 armed American merchantmen were torpedoed and sunk, and two other ships were sunk by submarine shell fire after long engagements.

Against these losses Daniels recorded 193 attacks as successfully repulsed and said 34 engagements probably resulted in damage to enemy submarines.

BANISH BREAKFAST MONOTONY WITH "BREAD CRUMB GRIDDLECAKES" FROM THE LEFTOVER BOOKLET

This surprise breakfast treat will start the day right for your family and incidentally make good use of that stale bread in the breadbox. The recipe is taken from "500 Delicious Dishes from Leftovers," the second Cookooklet in a series of twenty which is being offered, one a week, to readers of the Kingston Daily Freeman.

Oatmeal Muffins
2 cups sifted flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
2 tablespoons sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 egg, well beaten
2/3 cup cold cooked oatmeal
1 cup milk
2 tablespoons shortening, melted

Delicious, pungent Gingerbread becomes a party dessert when frosted and decorated. The Leftover Booklet suggests a marvelous recipe that helps you dispose of that cup of sour cream too.

Bread Crumb Griddlecakes
1 1/2 cups dry bread crumbs
1 1/2 cups scalded milk
2 tablespoons shortening
2 eggs, beaten
1/2 cup sifted flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
4 teaspoons baking powder

Spoon crumbs in milk and melted shortening until they are soft. Add eggs and dry ingredients sifted together. Bake on hot, greased griddle. The cakes are very tender and should be turned carefully. Makes 20 cakes.

When there's leftover oatmeal to worry about, why not try oatmeal muffins? They're quickly made and sure to win demands for encores.

Best of all, the Leftovers Booklet is easy to own. It's ready for you today and may be obtained for only 15¢ and one coupon from page 2 of The Kingston Daily Freeman or the nearest distributor listed upon the coupon or if you prefer, remit 16¢ with mall order coupon from page 2 to The Kingston Daily Freeman, Freeman Square, Cookooklet Dept., Kingston, N. Y.

City Engineer Has Plans for Buildings

(Continued from Page One) and it is expected that the erection of the buildings will be submitted as a W.P.A. project.

At the present time the county fair is only held for one day as there are no facilities for housing the livestock shown. If the proposed buildings are erected it is expected that the fair will be held for a longer period, and that the showing of cattle and horses will be greatly increased.

It was stated that at the present time the city lacks storage space for equipment not in use, and Acting Superintendent Max Oppenheimer and the mayor were empowered to lease a suitable building to be used this winter for storage space.

Wood to Retire

City Engineer Norton filed a communication with the board in which he stated that Lorraine B. Wood, after 45 years of service in the city engineer's department, was retiring the last of the month.

Mr. Norton said he had taken the matter up with the local civil service board and it was likely that a promotion examination would be held to fill the vacancy caused by Mr. Wood's retirement. It was also brought out that there were four positions not covered by civil service. They were those of Lawrence Snyder, who operates the city newspaper basket on wheels, and William Sinsabaugh who operates the gas roller, while in the city engineer's office there were also two positions not covered by civil service, that of Michael Corcoran, engineering aide, and Gus Paulson, junior stock clerk.

All four men had not been employed during the period between October, 1939, and October, 1940. Only city employees employed during that period had been placed under civil service.

It was decided to ask the civil service board to hold examinations for all service board.

Claim Rejected

Mrs. John Martin of 54 Van Deusen street had filed a claim against the city to recover the amount of a plumbing bill of $45.27 for removing roots from her sewer lateral, which it was claimed had been caused by roots from the main sewer growing into the lateral.

Acting Superintendent Max Oppenheimer said that he had gone to the Martin house at the time excavation was made and had found the main sewer clear with no roots in it, but that the Martin lateral was filled with roots which the employees of the sewer gang had removed. He said that under the circumstances he did not believe the city was liable.

The board voted to reject the claim.

Good Taste Today

By Emily Post

(Author of "Etiquette," "The Personality of a House," "The Blue Book of Social Usage," etc.)

TEA FIRST—OR LAST?

Although I know of no rule as to whether to serve tea first and then give the shower presents afterward, or to have the opening of the gifts first, and then the tea—it seems better to begin with the tea because you could start serving tea as soon as a reasonable number of those expected have come. Whereas, you wouldn't want to open the presents until you are quite sure that nearly everyone has arrived. Then too, I think it would be best to save the shower, which is the most important event, for the last.

Wife's Correct Name

Dear Mrs. Post: What is the correct name for a wife to use when she and her husband are separated, but not divorced?

Answer: Usually she keeps his name. The fact that they have different addresses shows that they have separated. The further fact that neither can re-marry avoids the complication of ex-wife and wife No. 2, having duplicate names. This is the principal reason why the divorcee properly gives up her husband's name, even though the court may grant her the privilege of keeping it.

Two Wedding Cakes

Dear Mrs. Post: We are having only families and nearest relatives at the wedding, and then are going for breakfast at the hotel. After the breakfast, we are coming home for a big reception that will include everyone we know. At the breakfast there will be about fifty—at the reception several hundred. When shall we have the wedding cake?

Answer: I think the best answer is to have the real cake that you cut, at the breakfast, and then at the reception, have a wedding cake table trimming—meaning a many-tiered architectural edifice made of sugar-icing, and next to it some wedding cake in individual boxes stacked up beside it. Also, a bigger stack of boxes on a table near the front door. It obviously is impossible to have a cake that can be cut for several hundred guests. I must add that wedding cake in little boxes is very expensive, but there is really no other way to give a piece of cake to each of 300 or 400 persons.

The Spoon for Cereal

Dear Mrs. Post: Kindly tell me if the spoon used for dessert is probably also for cereal. My husband thinks this dessert spoon is too large to eat cereal with.

Answer: The dessert spoon is the right spoon. Most people would find the teaspoon too small. But if your husband likes to eat with a little spoon, there is no sensible reason why he should not use it.

Mrs. Post is sorry she can no longer answer personal letters. She is glad, however, to have many printed slips on a variety of subjects to offer to her readers. Today's slip is "A Dance can be Simple." Be sure to send a three-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Mrs. Post, care of the Kingston Daily Freeman, P. O. Box 150, Times Square Station, New York, N. Y. Leaflets cannot be mailed unless self-addressed envelope bears correct amount of postage.

Miss Dorothy Castellano, sister of the bride, was her maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Miss Mary Messina, a cousin of the bride, and Miss Matilda Costantina, sister of the bridegroom, both of Highland. Miss Lottie Castellano, also a sister of the bride, was flower girl. The best man was John Constantino, and the ushers were Domenico Ciacciore and Stephen Castellano.

Given in marriage by her father, Miss Castellano wore a gown of white satin, with a train of two and a half yards in length and veil of tulle. She carried a muff bouquet of gardenias and roses. The maid of honor wore a gown of grey blue taffeta and carried an old fashioned bouquet of yellow roses. The bridesmaids dresses were of rose taffeta, cut in the same pattern as that of the maid of honor, and they carried old fashioned bouquets of red roses. The flower girl was gowned in rose taffeta and she dropped yellow roses in the path of the bride.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the Highland Grange hall. Decorations were white wedding bells, white paper fern leaves, and festoons of white crepe paper. Music for dancing was by the Ambassadors of Kingston.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Constantino attended the Highland schools. The bride is active in the societies of St. Augustine's Church. Mr. Constantino is employed at the Bermuda Naval Base and they will leave shortly for Bermuda which is to be their home for two years.

Kiwanis Elects Darrow, Matthews And H. S. Ensign

Allen Baker, Harry Frey
Are Chosen Directors for 3 Years; Will
Name Secretary

At the annual election of officers which followed the noonday luncheon of Kingston Kiwanis Thursday the following were elected unanimously to serve for the year 1942: Henry D. Darrow, president; George B. Matthews, vice-president; Harry S. Ensign, treasurer; Allen A. Baker and Harry TuBois Frey, directors for three years. They will assume office the first of the year.

The secretary will be appointed by the incoming president. This office is now held by R. Frederick Chidsey, who has served many terms. The club has had only three secretaries since it was chartered in this city. Others were William Van Valkenburgh and Robert Service. President Deegan announced that next week Kiwanis would be guest of Rotary, meeting on Wednesday. Rotary will also be host to the Kingston Lions Club that day.

The guest speaker Thursday was Arthur J. Laidlaw, superintendent of Kingston Schools, who discussed "Education and Business" as a contribution to the observance of national American Education Week, the general theme of which is "Education for a Strong America."

The address was a thoughtful analysis of some of the causes that lead to depression and lack of more general prosperity in the nation, the failure of both business and education to fully understand each other and the need for friendly discussion of the problems involved in order that there might be a clearer appreciation of the relation the school bears to the various activities of nations at life.

The speaker found that organized education played a large part in making America strong and asked for a priority rating for school children and the educational program. As to the American way of living, the speaker said, "We enjoy what we do because of the free public school system."

Superintendent Laidlaw told of an investigation made by a well known educator in a southern city who was by chance led to question the reason for the fact that in nearby communities of much smaller population newspaper circulation and use of telephones was so much larger than in his home city. He learned two pertinent facts—that in his own city there were 266,000 persons ten years of age or over who could not read or write and that the general level of education in the other communities was at least two grades higher.

As to the things in this country that really need defending, the speaker mentioned the guarantees of the Bill of Rights, the American way of living and the like. "The great defense need is an enlightened, intelligent, free-thinking citizenship," he said.

Speaking of the resources destroyed by the World War, the terrible losses which followed the stock crash and the destruction of much of civilization's advance and the American way of life by the long drawn out depression, Mr. Laidlaw went on to enumerate some of the "cures" that had been tried. He spoke of salesmanship, advertising, the growth of the installment buying plan and now the "mortgaging of the government for the next 500 years."

In this connection he referred to the statement that if the war continued until 1944 there would be twenty-three million persons working in war industries and three and a half million more in the armed forces of the country. He suggested that the situation which would follow the close of the war era would be "worse than ever before."

The only hope for solving these problems was seen to be found in right education, which was declared to be the basis for real culture and wealth. The basis of business is not so much salesmanship and the other methods which have been tried and found wanting, it was suggested, as the cultural level of the people.

In conclusion, Mr. Laidlaw said, "We must think more in terms of people and not so much in terms of things."

HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

On Tuesday afternoon some representatives from the local Hi-Y made the trip to Goshen, in order to present their bill before the model Hi-Y Assembly. The members who attended were: Conrad Tinner, Bob Brown and Howard Bunting, advisor and boy's work secretary at the Y. M. C. A.

In the absence of President Norman Hanson, Conrad Tinner represented the club.

Although the bill passed down in the assembly itself, and although their bill cannot go to Albany in December the club is still entitled to send some representatives.

At Monday night's meeting the rest of the members, who were absent on the third were inducted into the club. The induction was carried on by means of an impressive ceremony conducted by the members themselves. On the third an induction team from Newburgh was in charge of the ceremony.

Also at Monday night's meeting, it was decided to have a pep dance at the Y. M. C. A. Gym on November 19, the night before the Turkey Day Game. The music for this dance will be furnished by Bill Burns and his Night Hawks.

This dance will start at 9 o'clock and will follow the pep meeting to be held at the stadium.

At this time members of the club accepted the wager made by the Newburgh Induction Group on the night of the third. This is as follows: If K. H. S. loses to Newburgh the local Hi-Y has to furnish all the trimmings for a party—music and girls. If, however, Newburgh loses to K. H. S. the opposite is true.

Hay Ride Held

On Monday evening last the members of the Newman Club held a Hay Ride.

The three wagons left St. Peter's School and the Academy Green and went out to William's Lake.

that year was chairman of the committee that raised $8,000 to defray the drum corps expenses to the Texas convention.

Andrew J. Murphy, past commander of Kingston Post, also recalled that on March 22, 1928, the Legionnaires of Ulster county tendered Mr. Spafford a banquet at the Governor Clinton Hotel at the time he was elected national commander of the American Legion.

About two years ago Mr. Spafford was also in Kingston and spoke at a big American Legion meeting held in the municipal auditorium. During his term as state commander he was also a frequent visitor in Kingston.

He was born on March 12, 1878, and was a graduate of the U. S. Naval Academy. He resigned his commission as lieutenant commander in 1914 but returned to active service during the World War, serving in the Mediterranean.

Prior to becoming national commander of the American Legion, he served as commander of the department of New York and chairman of the naval affairs committee.

Spafford, a native of Springfield, Vt., commanded the National Legion in 1927-28. Details of his illness are not disclosed immediately.
